AROUND the TOWNSHIP

By Henry Alderman

It has been called to our attention by visitors to our district and by some of our residents who have pride in Washington Township ..that someone is being a little careless and is throwing garbage along our highways and private roads. It may be that this is done by transients coming through here, but our guess is that someone in our midst is just a little thoughtless. Let's go out of town for our dumping grounds and keep our highways and byways clean.

* * *

Our new wife who plans to join us in a few weeks, writes that her brothers think we are pretty smart to leave her up north to try her cooking prowess out on them before she tries it out on us.

* * *

T. A. Nichols of Warm Springs is probably the only male branch librarian for miles around. He presides over the Mission San Jose books. Mr. Nichols plays the violin and keeps a lively interest in township doings, although he will be 76 years old next March.

* * *

Miss Perry, who had charge of our recent circulation compaign, has a great fondness for tidbits. When we cleared out our desk after her departure from this office, we found two old fashioned peppermints, one gumdrop, a jar about one-sixth full of honey and a jar full of vinegar, numerous herbs and one dill pickle.

The pickle jar had been given Miss Perry by Nell Myers, one of the contestants. Miss Perry had eaten all but that one pickle. We ate that, as well as the honey and the gum drop and the peppermint. We hope we shall not be sick.

They've certainly got a bunch of sissies working down at the Graham plant. Burdick and Charlie Long are home in bed with the flu. Lyda and Elsa are running the shebang without the two boys.

NATIONALLY KNOWN FIRM BUILDS HERE

NEWARK—A new plant costing approximately the sum of $1,000,000 will be constructed at Newark by the Westavco Chlorine Products Corporation.

The expansion program at the plant of the California Chemical Company, one of two plants in the natio processing "ethyl lead" compoud for motor fuel, was assured last week as Westvaco Chlorine Products Corporation purchased a large interest in the firm here. Stanley Burrows, president of the company, confirmed the deal with Westvaco corporation, whose offices are in Delaware.

One of the chief products of the local plant is ethylene dibromide, key constituent in the gasoline "ethyl lead" compound. More than 70 per cent of all gasoline sold in the country today contains at least small percentages of the chemical.

California Chemical Company also owns magnesite mines in the State and turns out magnesite products used in the manufacture of steel. It also produces barium and calcium derivatives.

BENDEL'S CREW ACTIVE IN 1936

NILES—Washington township's anti-mosquito forces led by Roland Bendel together with the Eden township crew, performed a total of 7,412 cesspool and septic tank oilings, and 353 dairy drain oilings during the past year. Other fresh water breeding places which required treatment included drainage from canneries, slaughter houses and laundries, roadside ditches, seepage from springs and liquid fertilizer tanks. Human carelessness was responsible for considerable mosquito breeding in water-filled buckets, barrels, tin cans and similar containers.

In Alameda county cities, catch basins—where gutter water runs into the sewers—and "man-holes" were principal sources of mosquitoes to be controlled. With motorcycle equipment, 44,397 catch basin oilings were performed and 4000 of the underground street vaults oiled.

Throughout the district a total of 451 miles of creekbed, roadside ditch, and dairy drain was oiled.

Total expenditures for 1936 amounted to $34,151. The district's tax rate is eight-tenths of a cent for each $100 of assessed valuation.

DISTRICT WILL TAKE OVER WATER SUPPLY

NILES—The fifty men who are now engaged in digging a trench along the West side of the Niles-Centerville highway are doing work preliminary to the laying of a new pipeline which will bring 260,000 gallons of water a day to riparian rights customers aroudn Niles and Centerville. This water is being furnished by the City of San Francisco.

Start of the project is the culmination of several months of negotiations between the City water department and the Alameda County Water District, under the direction of Chris Runckel, Secretary and Manager. Board members of the water district declare that this agreement whereby the water district takes over the service of these customers, will mean that Washington Township in the future will always have adequate water supply for its farm lands. It will eliminate the dangers of the salt water haard which for years has been a threat to the prosperity of some farmers in this community. In the past, riparian owners have been served by the City of San Francisco. Now the County district will take over that service.

Construction of the new pipeline is being done by W. P. A. Improvement of the wells west of the Niles fault line is the fundamental goal of the district in making this agreement with the city. Well-owners report a rise of from 1 to 14 feet in levels.

District members declare that this new agreement will in no way affect the dumping of water into the gravel pits which has been carried on in the past. The water is to come from the Clark reservoir in Niles Canyon on releases from the Calaveras Dam Lake.

EDDIE saw them when he turned the corner and quick anger bubbled inside of him.

Betty was leaning back against a lamp post, her slim hands behind her. Leaning over her, braced with one hand against the post, was Sid Wise, his street-gamin face white and pasty in the light.

Betty was the first to notice Eddie's angry approach. She ducked beneath Sid's braced arm. "Hello, Eddie," she said doubtfully.

Sid Wise came around more slowly.

"'Lo, Ed," he offered.

Eddie went up to him. His finger jabbed Sid beneath the collar bone. "Scram!"

"Now Eddie. . . . said Betty.

Sid Wise shrugged as a man does when faced with complete unreason. He flashed a smile at Betty and turned abruptly away.

"Gee, Eddie," said Betty. "We were only talkin'. What's wrong with that? I was waitin' for you, Eddie, and Sid just happened to come along."

"Come on," said Eddie roughly.

"I don't know what's the matter with you," she said. "I'm old enough to take care of myself. What harm can Sid Wise do talking to me on a public street?"

"I don't want that weasel near you," snapped Eddie. "I've said it before and I'll say it now."

"I get kind of sick of this, Eddie," she said slowly. "It's no fun for me to work all day and then wait till ten o'clock before you're through school. I don't mind waiting—" she went on hurriedly—"but you ought to let me talk to somebody."

"You can talk to people," he said in exasperation. "But why does it have to be Sid Wise?"

She shrugged. "You acted the same way about Tony Herro and Buck Civak."

He stopped, took her arm. "Listen, Betty. You know what I want. I want to get us both out of this neighborhood. I'm graduating this year and can get a decent job. We'll get married and move up north. Until then you can at least stay clear of Sid and Buck and the rest of those hoods. That's all I ask."

She flared back at him. "What do you want me to do? Talk to a bunch of grannies? The girls all go with those fellows. They're none the worse for it. They're—"

Eddie released her arm as though burned. "If that's what you think, you'd better stick down here. It's where you belong. I'm going to make something of myself, not be a cheap hood all my life. You can do what you d—n please."

She sighed and continued on her way. She and Eddie had been fighting a lot lately. Of course, it wasn't easy for Eddie, handling freight all day and going to school at night. But it wasn't any fun for her either. She'd give anything for one night of music and laughter!

* * *

"Hello, beautiful," said Sid Wise.

She stopped and he stepped from the car at the curb. Buck Civak was at the wheel.

"Where's Eddie?" asked Sid.

"He's gone home."

"Well, well. These students! Buck and me are going to the Dreamland; want to come along?"

"No. I'm tired," said Betty.

"Come on, if you're goin'," called Buck.

Sid was lighting another cigarette. "Well?" he said.

Betty shrugged. "All right. I'm leaving early though."

She sat between Buck and Sid in the front seat and Sid's arm was carelessly crooked over her shoulder. "We'll have some fun, eh baby?" he said.

Betty didn't answer. She was thinking of Eddie hunched at his desk; she could almost picture his bent, earnest face. He had told her that he slept fitfully while his head whirled formulas and a scarlet light shone behind his closed lids. Betty suddenly felt very small.

"Come on, baby," said Sid. "Look alive. We're out for some fun."

"How about stopping for a drink?" asked Buck.

"Good idea. That'll wake Betty up."

"No, wait a minute," said Betty. "I've got a better idea. There's a new girl working at the store. She's cute. Let's get her for Buck."

"Sounds good to me," said Buck. "I can always use a new filly."

"Where's she live?" asked Sid.

Betty gave the address. Sid is right, she told herself, I should wake up.

When the car pulled to the curb, Betty got out. "I'll be with you in a second," she told them. "We won't be long."

Sid was on his third cigarette when he said: "Cripes! what's keeping those dolls. Honk the horn, Buck."

Buck's hand hesitated over the knob. He peered with sudden intensity at the house. "Say . . ." he said slowly. "Ain't this the place where Eddie lives?"

Sid stared in turn. He flung away his cigarette. "Start the motor," he barked. "And if there's one crack outa you I'll bust your head!"

WAS LIKE THIS

To the weather man, the months of January and February represent a series of cold waves. To most of us, all of winter is cold whether the temperature is 26 degrees or 42 degrees. But inside Gas Heated homes there were no cold waves—no shivers.

Gas heating equipment that requires no attention and no regulation, kept hundreds of thousands of Northern California homes right in the comfort zone. Fuel was always on hand—plenty of it. Heat came pouring out at the just comfortably right temperature.

There is no other form of heating that gives such a completely carefree comfort as Gas Heating. Gas Heating is also economical heat for gas heating rates are down. A known-cost gas heating estimate for your home will place you under no obligation. Telephone today and say, "I want a gas heating estimate for my home."

MRS. LEWIS HAS CURRANT DISH

It is a boon to home economics editors to find a housewife as willing to help us as Mrs. L. Lewis. Mrs. Lewis's favorite pastime is cooking and she vouches for the following one of her favorite tea ring recipes:

Currant Tea Ring

Ingredients:
7 cups flour.
1 cup milk, scalded and cooled.
1 cup water, lukewarm.
6 tablespoons shortening.
½ cup sugar.
3 egg.s
1 tablespoon sugar.
2 cakes Fleischmann's yeast.
1 tablespoon salt.

Method:—Dissolve yeast and one tablespoon sugar in lukewarm liquid. Add 3 cups of flour and beat until smooth. Add shortening and sugar, thoroughly creamed, and eggs beaten until light, the remainder of the flour gradually or enough to make a mederate soft dough and the salt.

Turn on board and knead lightly. Place in greased bowl. Cover and set aside in a warm place to rise for about 2 hours..

Roll out in oblong piece, 1-4 inch thick. Brush generously with melted butter. Sprinkle with brown sugar, currants or raisins and cinnamon and dash of nutmeg. Roll up lengthwise and place in circle on a large shallow greased pan or baking sheet. With scissors cut 3-4 in. slices almost through.

Turn each slice partly on its side, pointing away from cented. This should give the effect of a many pointed star and show the different layers with the filling.

Cover and let rise for one hour or until light and bake 25 minutes in a medium oven. Just before putting in oven, glaze with slightly beaten egg diluted with milk. Ice while hot with plain powdered sugar icing—or glace.

This recipe makes two large or three small rings.

CORN BREAD STUFFING FINE

One of the finest old typically American recipes is corn bread stuffing.

It goes back to those early days when home-makers had only one meal laboriously ground from corn with which to make their bread.

Wild turkey and game had to be stuffed, so they created corn bread stuffing.

Stir up a big batch of corn bread, pop it into the oven until it cooks a golden brown, and do your stuffing!

CORN BREAD
4 cups white corn meal
2 cups boiling water
4 eggs
¼ cup bacon drippings
1 cup evaporated milk
1 cup water
2 teaspoons salt

Pour boiling water over meal and stir well. Add remaining ingredients. Blend well.

Pour into a well greased large shallow baking pan or into small pans, and bake in a hot oven 425 degrees F until brown, about 15 minutes.

CORN BREAD STUFFING
½ cup melted butter
1 large onion minced
10 cups crumbled corn bread
1¼ cups evaporated milk
1¼ cups boiling water
2½ teaspoons salt
2 eggs, Thyme and Sage

Cook onion slowly in the butter 5 minutes. Remove from fire, add remaining ingredients. Blend well and season to taste. Yield: Sufficient for a 15-pound turkey.

This corn bread stuffing, made with evaporated milk, has a full rich flavor and a moist mealy texture that goes perfectly with roast turkey.

If there's any left over, use it in turkey hash—it gives new zest to an old-time favorite.

WALNUT PRUNE CAKE
Cream:
⅔ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
Add 3 egg yolks and beat well
Fold in 1 cup cooked prunes and 3 tablespoons sour cream or two tablespoons sweet cream and 1 tablespoon vinegar
Sift:
1½ cups cake flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg and allspice
¼ teaspoon salt, if butter is not used
Fold in:
3 stiffly beaten egg whites, and
1 teaspoon vanilla

Bake in layers at 350 degrees F. for 25 minutes. Frost with a mocha butter frosting. Decorate with walnuts.

CROUTONS

Cut the bread into small dice. Place in a buttered pan and toast it in the oven, or put it in a frying basket and plunge into hot fat.

EGGPLANT FRITTERS

Boil the eggplant in salt water until tender. Change the water once while boiling.

Drain, skin and mash it well. Mix with butter, salt and one egg. Add two or three tablespoons of flour. Drop in spoonfuls of the batter into the hot fat

NEW STYLES IN BEAUTY

BY MRS. OWEN SWAINSON
(AS TOLD TO OUR REPORTER)

Today when you go shopping for beauty you find that the styles in hairdressing have changed far more radically than they have in clothes.

No longer are all of you given the same kind of hair dress and make-up. It is the fashion now to study you as individuals and to analyize your type. The shades of make-up must suit your coloring; the powder be blended for you, personally. And, oh. the miracles that can be wrought by paplying it! Your face can be shortened or lengthened, a broad face made to look slender. And if you really would like to change your appearance just try a new hair dress. Is your face too round? Then please wear no curls on the side. Brush the hair smooth and have the curls at the back.

Is yours a long, narrow face? Then wear the hair low on the forehead and have the curls at the sides.

Are curls, then so necessary, whether you are fat or thin, young or old? My answer is a most emphatic yes if only on account of the hats worn this season. These small hats, perched on top of the head, absolutely demand curls, short ones not long.

No, there is no age limit for curls. White hair must have its ringlets just as surely as eighteen-year old brown.

But remember no waves on the crown. There the hair must be kept smooth and flat.

And what of the nails? Are they to continue to be bright red? Happily no. This winter the trend is toward a lighter shade. For spring and summer they will brighten up a bit, but will be a more neutral shade than in the past. less conspicuous, and will blend in better with the ensemble. But getting back to those miracles of make-up. Are there dark shadows under your eyes, or perhaps a bit of bagginess? Then never blend your cheek rouge toward the eyes.

Better wait, though. I guess I should start at the beginning. In our classes in Hollywood we were taught that there are nine important steps in applying make-up. Oh, oh! I'm at the end of my column. I shall have to tell about these next week.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Niles, California, under Act of Congress March 3, 1879.

Determined a Newspaper of General Circulation by Decree of the Superior Court (Department 6), of Alameda County, California.

We don't pretend to know the merits of the strike situation at the nursery—who is right or who is wrong. We do know, however, that the same organizers who were instigators of the Kraftile trouble of some months ago are apparently behind this new one.

It is our remembrance that the Kraftile workers, for the most part, felt they had been buncoed by those organizers.

Everyone should be glad to help Mrs. C. N. Myrick raise money for flood relief by the American Red Cross. Mrs. Myrick is in charge of township collections and she has done a good job in the past. There is no doubt but that her efforts will be rewarded this time.

Last spring the township raised more than $300 for Red Cross flood relief—this in addition to the $300 raised during the regular membership campaign. This year, when the need is greater, more money should be forthcoming.

Niles should think seriously about the purchase of its new highway signs. When the new road is completed, the town will need two such signs at least—perhaps three. Even the smallest neon type sign will cost in the neighborhood of $400. That amount of money will be difficult to raise. Now is not too soon to start planning.

We see by the Farm Bureau monthly that some writer in that publication urges tomato growers to answer low prices in the fashion discovered by Southern California and eastern growers: that of honest contracts with honest canners, on a co-operative basis.

Seems to us that the farm bureau monthly might look a little closer at hand. Washington and Eden township growers have done the most difficult pioneering work in this field.

The whole setup for retention of the present highway between Niles and the rest of the township now hangs on action by the board of supervisors. There is no doubt but that Supervisor Ralph V. Richmond will do all he possibly can to see that this action suits the local residents.

Meanwhile, there is the matter of raising the attorney fees for Bestor Robinson who has acted for Niles people in a legal capacity.

No one person need give very much toward this fee. If everyone gives a little bit, the amount raised will be sufficient.

The editor of this paper is of masculine gender; but the reporter is a lady. We think it wise to point out in this column that the hospital experiences mentioned in the City Life column on this page were written by the reporter. We notice she has a pun—all about beds and bedlam—which we think very fine.

TO THE EDITOR:

The fact that the Townsend Plan does not proceed any faster should not discourage anyone. Neither should the fact that trouble and confusion arise discourage anyone. These things are to be expected and must be overcome.

This plan is both the strongest and the weakest plan ever proposed. It is strongest because it is the soundest and most vital. It is the weakest because it is still the least understood. No plan was ever more feared in high places. More plan was ever more ignorantly though tenaciously supported. It cannot be killed—only delayed.

Only now is it beginning to be realized that blind support will not suffice. The movement must be built from the bottom with everyone's eyes wide open to mistakes as well as successes. We have been too much afraid to think and to know and to do for ourselves. If we would have the Townsend Plan all must think and do. Knowing the bad must not contaminate us. It must cause us to clean out the bad. To criticise must not cause us to hate. Rather it must lead to careful consideration. If things are printed about, or for the Townsend plan, we must read it. We must not fear it or suppress it. The folly of the ostrich covering his head in the sand to escape his enemy is familiar to all. Be not like ostriches.

City Life

We hope we will be forgiven for speaking of our operation but a night spent in the maternity ward of a hospital for one who is not accustomed to such an environment, is we believe an interesting experience.

Making way for a new surgery case, the staff transferred from the last private room in the hospital to one of the two remaining beds in the maternity ward. The only beds available in the entire hospital. The bed they dropped us into was marked number 1.

When we were in condition to count the beds about us and examine the respective occupants we noticed that there were six. Bed 2 was occupied by a young and cheerful woman. She was about 21 years of age.

In bed 3 was a very uninteresting person of very solemn expression, No. 4 was the youngest of the crowd. A girl of 19. The youngest mother in the ward. Next to her in bed 5 was a woman of about 38 who was to have her tonsils removed and had been moved into this ward under an emergency, as was our case. Bed 6 was being reserved for the next woman patient, whoever she might be. The only now available bed in the hospital, and it would probably be taken before many hours had elapsed.

Toward the late afternoon when we thought we were able to amuse ourselves and help pass the time away by looking at some magazines we got out of bed and got into the locker where the nurse had put our things. This caused not a little consternation among the other "guests" not knowing what ailed us. Seeing our head bandaged and one of them exclaimed to the others, "We have someone else in the ward who can't stay in bed." Believing that an assertion or declaration on our part to the effect that we were perfectly sane and harmless would only jeopardize our position among the folk, we said nothing and crept back into bed. They had by this time all drawn their own conclusions as to what was the matter with patient No. 1.

It was during visiting hours that evening and everyone seemed to be talking at once. We thought we were in bedlam. Bed No. 3 was nagging at a little man and asking why had he not done this, that and the other thing earlier in the week. In self defense, he explained his program for that day, having started out by making his own breakfast and this after a sleepless night when he had been moving the furniture from one house to another. He was moving all their things to a new home.

After working all day, he had gone after working hours to do some shopping for the new baby.

He washed everything that had not been wrapped in cellophane, but being inexperienced in such matters had left them out on the clothes line and it had rained on them.

Another lecture from the wife—why didn't he take more care—

She forgot to nag him long enough to get curious to see the things he had bought and asked to see the clothes. He became all excited again and showed what he had accomplished in the way of purchases. Everything was smooth again for a few minutes until she remembered to ask for the baby's bonnet. Being a man, he is not expected to be practical in such things and he showed her what he thot was the cutest little bonnet and which was not a bonnet at all, but a knitted beret and something a woman would never buy for a ten-day old baby. Mrs. patient No. 3 then descended on her meek and willing husband again and was about to expose his sins to the entire ward when the nurse announced, "I'm sorry, but visiting hours are over." The husband said, "I'm sorry, dear, but that is the best I can do, you know." He bent over and kissed her and then filed out behind the other visitors.

After all the excitement had abated, we noticed that the young girl in No. 4 was eating chocolates and reading True Romances. She said both her mother and mother-in-law had insisted that she remain in the hospital another five days and that they were planning to do her work for her when she went home. She wasn't to do anything.

Bed 2 said, "Well, I guess my husband had to work tonight."

There is a French restaurant across the bay on highway 101 wich is called "L'Omelette." Aside from the fact that there seem to be a large number of Stanford students there most of the time, the place is worth trying. It's on the west side of the road about half way between Palo Alto and Santa Clara. Cheapest meal 75 cents but good stuff.

Palo Alto has a new picture newspaper. The sheet is a weekly, printed on a Harris offset press. There is little original news in it but lots of local pictures. Its staff members say the demand for it is growing.

TOWNSHIP'S FARM NEWS

In Our Township Garden

By Paul Dougherty

PAYMENTS TO FARMERS

During the week the AAA announced the Soil Conservation Program which will prevail during 1937 in California. This program awaits only Federal appropriations which appear to be forthcoming in the near future. Several new features have been included from which the farmers in the Township may benefit. Any substantial growth of cover crop, either summer or winter, and whether followed by immediate cropping of the ground or not, will receive a payment of $2 per acre. New plantings of alfalfa or ladino clover will rate $4 per acre if the stand secured be satisfactory; otherwise $2.50 per acre.

Old orchard lands in which trees past their usefulness are removed will, under certain circumstances, rate a payment of $5 per acre. For similar renovation work with certain bush berry crops and with vineyards, a payment of $4 an acre will be allowed The purpose of these last 2 payments, as we see it is to remove marginal and unprofitable fruit plantings which often are a source of pest infestation for neighboring well kept properties and which though producing unprofitable crops, tend to pile up marketing surpluses. The orchardist and vinyardist may earn 75c a ton for working leguminous straw into the soil in their orchards and vineyards. For working in other straws they are allowed 50c a ton.

The cattleman will be allowed $50 per spring or seep developed on his land. If he puts in earthen pits or reservoirs he will be allowed 15c per cubic yard. For digging or drilling wells on cattle ranges the payment will be $1 per linear foot. Numerous other payments are available to the cattlemen. In no case, however, can the cattleman receive more than $1.50 per head of cattle grazed.

The usual proceedure of making out work sheets will be necessary.

CONGRATULATIONS

We feel that we cannot pass this chance to congratulate the Editor upon the wise step that he has just taken. We have not yet met the lady of his choice but we note with approval that she has been living in a small country town and that she is a graduate of a State College where students learn things that are useful and and come to respect the values of country life. We wish them both a long and happy life together and that if they have any troubles, that they be little ones.

Our Share in the National Income

At the Farm Center meeting recently we were impressed by certain figures which Chester Fry brought forward. These figures showed that in California, one of the best organized and cooperative states in the Union, less than 30% of the farmers belonged to any such organizations as the Farm Bureau, the Farmers Union or the Grange. I think we all see that the powerful organizations of industry and labor are to dictate more and more our national policies and legislation. When Labor, Industry and Agriculture sit about the National table and divide up the income of the country, we think it is evident that the lack of organization of the farmers will prevent their receiving their rightful share.

WINTER SPRAYING

Every bright day now finds the orchardists out with their spray rigs putting oil spray on the trees principally to hold the scale in check. These tiny insects are killed by being smothered with a coating of oil. The soap like sprays formerly used are becoming a thing of the past. The farmers are going on the basis that oil and water will mix and by using more power and more agitation and with the cooperation of the oil companies in producing just the right type of oil, the work is being done cheaper and better than ever before.

ANSWER FOUND TO LOWER PRICES

Recent developments in the canning tomato deal go to prove that the only way in which growers can make a satisfactory deal with canners is to follow the lead of New Jersey growers and of the growers of Southern California last season, of selling their crop under an honest contract and at a living price, or else—don't grow tomatoes.

Farm Bureau is preparing a statement of the situation and the suggested plan of procedure, which will be distributed to the growers.

This will be available through the county tomato growers cimmittees.—Farm Bureau Monthly.

WILL CALIFORNIA GROW COFFEE?

A San Leandro housewife set out what she thought was a "snowball" plant nine years ago. It has grown and prospered yielding strange blossoms and stranger fruit. This spreading plantation has now turned out to be coffee. Report has it that tests will be made on a larger scale, since San Leandro climate in Alameda county seems to agree with the plant.—Farm Bureau Monthly.

LEWIS BACK

Joseph Lewis, vice president of the Stove Mounters International Union is back from Los Angeles after working hard to settle strikes. He claims there was a lot of snow out that way.

Many Newark people attended the masquerade Swiss dance given at Swiss park last hursday night. All had an enjoyable evening.
